

EDUCATOR TELLS TEACHERS YOUTH MUST BE DIRECTED

"A Clean Body, One God and
One Humanity is All Youth Needs"

DR. LEVITSKY, SPEAKER

Youth of This Country Strictly Conformist, He Says

(Special to Courier)
DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 30.—"A clean body, one God and one humanity is all that youth needs today to give America a new generation," declared the Rev. Dr. Louis M. Levitsky, nationally known Wilkes-Barre rabbi and teacher, in an address yesterday before more than 700 members of the Bucks County Teachers' Institute who crowded the Bucks County Court House.

Dr. Levitsky's two addresses before the Institute sessions and one last night before the Bucks County Parent-Teacher group, were the highlights of two important meetings here yesterday.

His afternoon address, considered the masterpiece of the Institute, was entitled "A New Testament for Youth." He minced no words in presenting to a large audience his formula for a much-disturbed citizenship.

"Only a few years ago, this nation discovered it had a group of youths," Dr. Levitsky said. "Prior to that time, only children and adults existed in America. Just as a person is not conscious of his internal organs while in health but becomes acutely aware of them when they become ill, so did America discover its youth when the body politic fell ill."

Dr. Levitsky said that some of the things which led America to discover its youth are the fact that last year, 40 per cent of all prisoners committed to penal institutions in Pennsylvania were under 21 years of age. Fifty-nine per cent, three out of five, of all commitments were those of youths between the ages of 17 and 25, he said.

"There are 5,000,000 youths under 25 who have never had a job, have never earned a single copper penny," he continued.

"We cannot blame the foreign element on youth's delinquency," Dr. Levitsky told the teachers. "Only 6 percent of criminal commitments are those of foreign birth. We cannot blame foreign communists for the communist party in America is only 27,000 strong, according to Fortune magazine, a conservative journal, and their leaders are second and third and fourth generation Americans. The fault lies in ourselves."

"The youth of this country is strictly conformist. If one girl wears shorts or rolls her stockings, they all do the same thing. If one boy adopts a new slang word, they all adopt it. Youth is not individualistic. It is not liberal but decidedly reactionary."

"The magazine 'Nation,' a liberal periodical, some time ago offered a prize for the college student who wrote the best editorial on peace. A month ago it announced the results and stated that it was keenly disappointed that of the 241 editorials it received from students in 96 colleges, not one was liberal in thought."

"Youth has enthusiasm, energy, vigor and discontent, a happy carelessness which goes with youth and makes it reckless of consequences. Therefore youth dares much to gain much."

"Did you ever notice in the news reels and the rotogravures who are the supporters of Hitler? None are older than thirty. I am a Jew and therefore you cannot expect me to say many things good about Hitler, but what a brilliant mind he must have! He has captured the imagination of youth. He has said to youth, 'Follow me and we shall build an empire and disturb the peace of the world.' And he is doing it.
Mussolini called to youth, 'follow me and I shall build you an empire in a country you have never seen before.'
And youth followed. Lenin, said to youth, 'follow me, and I shall upset an empire of a thousand years' duration and build a nation greater than the whole of Europe.' And youth has answered the call."

"Are we in America going to let the energies and enthusiasm of our youth rot on the street corner, in the pool room, in the beer saloon? Think of what youth can accomplish if shown the way."

"Youth needs two things in this country, one of which we can give only

DEFEAT THIS GRAB

(Oil City Derrick, October 23, 1937)

School teachers and administrators meeting in Pittsburgh last week endorsed the proposed amendment to the Pennsylvania constitution permitting the state and other taxing units to levy personal income taxes on the people of this state.

The Pittsburgh Press very properly directs the attention of teachers to the fact that while they indorse the principle of an income tax, they do so with poor grace. They themselves belong to that class which, because they are public servants, pay no federal income tax. For that matter, neither do state, county or city employees or officeholders pay any income taxes no matter how big their salaries may be.

This thing of urging that the other fellow pay the tax will not go down so well with the public. The present swarm of tax eaters in Harrisburg are appealing to voters in the lower brackets to support this proposed tax amendment on the pusillunimous predicate that it will only soak the rich.

In one way or another taxes soak everybody. The bulk of all taxes finally goes into the cost of food, rents, goods and service. It is just a little bit raw to find high salaried officeholders in Pennsylvania who pay no income taxes themselves urging that others be taxed so that politicians will have more money with which to lord it over the taxpayers.

Various hypocritical promises to the voters are made.
The spenders say that revenue from this income tax will be used to relieve the taxes on farms and properties. In the next breath they say it will be used to support the schools. But what are they doing with the huge revenue from the Mellon estates?
Are they using this to relieve the taxes on homes and farms?
Are they using it on the schools? Not at all. Quite as soon as it was realized that millions would be forthcoming from these estates, it was announced that this money would be used to

Valley station of Pennsylvania Motor Police, is in Harriman Hospital, re-figured in an accident.

The crash, according to the highway patrol, occurred at the intersection of Woodbourne Road and route 513, Middletown Township. Sospetti was said to be travelling South on Woodbourne Road, and the officer East on Route 513. The officer was thrown from his motorcycle, and the Sospetti car overturned.

Officer Harris was taken to Harriman Hospital, where he is being treat-both knees and ankles. He remains at the hospital for X-rays.

Candidate for Council

FRANK PFEIFFER

Republican Candidate from Sixth Ward for Bristol Borough Council.

A member of Borough Council since 1929 when he succeeded Frank Satterthwaite, Frank Pfeiffer is a candidate for re-election as a councilman from the Sixth Ward, on November 2nd. His record in office and his personal popularity combine to make him a candidate favored by a majority of the voters of the Sixth Ward.

Although Mr. Pfeiffer is at all times eager to be of service to others, that kindly characteristic is most outstanding in the active part he has taken in Boys Week activities and his untiring efforts to help crippled and under-privileged children.

Mr. Pfeiffer prides himself on his regularity of attendance upon the meetings of council and he takes a zealous interest in his duties as a member of the street and highway and municipal water supply committees.

Born in Philadelphia, February 2nd, 1885, Mr. Pfeiffer was brought to Bristol by his parents when he was three years of age, and has lived here ever since.

After attending the public schools of Bristol, he worked in several factories here, following which he entered the piano and musical instrument business with the late Charles Grim.

Upon the latter's death, some 20 years ago, Mr. Pfeiffer took over the business, which he has continued since.

Mr. Pfeiffer is a member of the Bristol Rotary Club and Bristol Lodge, No. 970, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Students Oppose Dean At National Farm School

DOYLESTOWN, Oct. 30.—Directors of the National Farm School today rallied to the support of Dean Cletus Goodling, target for student "agitators"
who criticized him as a "harsh discipli-narian" and urged his resignation.
Herbert D. Allman, president, announced he and other directors will meet at the school tomorrow to consider the institution's 200 students.

Under complaints voiced by a minority
"A few agitators among the students have expressed their disapproval of Dean Goodling's tactics, and have asked that he resign," declared Allman.
"They complained that he is too strict a disciplinarian, but the directors and myself will continue to stand behind Dean Goodling. The officers and faculty are running the school, not the students."

TO ENROLL CHILDREN IN JUNIOR RED CROSS

Bristol School Children Will Become Members Without Having to Pay Dues

MAY MAKE DONATIONS

School children in Bristol with Miss Clara King as director, will be enrolled in the Junior Red Cross.

No fee is required for membership, but each year the boys and girls make volunteer donations of pennies and nickels. These contributions go for the purchase of material, from which garments are made by the juniors, or it may be used for health needs.

The American Junior Red Cross was a spontaneous movement. It was initiated by school children during the World War who sought to have a part in the great work of the American Red Cross.

As the result of the junior organization, each year sees thousands of articles donated, such as layettes, garments, reading tables, trays, game boards for invalids; jams, jellies and vegetables are given to the needy and life is made brighter for other thousands by menu covers, dance programs, pictures, posters, greeting cards and calendars, all of which are the handiwork of the school children.

Newspapers Face Rising Cost Crisis

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—Prediction that many newspapers may be forced to raise their circulation rates because of fast rising newspaper and other production costs was given yesterday by W. G. Chandler, chairman of the Newspaper Committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Chandler already has asked publishers to protest to newspaper manufacturers the threatened price increases for 1938.

Newspapers in more than 50 American cities have been forced to raise their rates recently because of increased costs, he said.

RECEIVE BIDS

HARRISBURG, Oct. 30.—Seventeen miles of highway improvements today were provided in eight projects and unofficial low bidders were announced by the highway department. Projects and low bidders included: Bucks County, 8 of a mile of concrete and bridge on United States Route 39 to eliminate a dangerous underpass at

HO-HUM! PASS THE WAFFLES

(By the Stroller)

A certain good Republican worker in Edgely attended the Republican rally in Emile on Thursday night, and went home and slept on it for an hour or two. She awoke suddenly, thinking she had heard the alarm go off. So she went downstairs, prepared her husband's breakfast and called him, thinking all the while there were several cars going by for so early in the morning.

"When the husband finished eating and glanced at the clock, he found out he had a very early breakfast as it was only half past one.

So they retired to bed for a few more hours sleep.

CLUB WOMEN OF COUNTY HEAR OF EDUCATION TRENDS

Dr. Carmon Ross, Edinboro
Teachers College President,
Addresses the Group

SESSION AT WOODSIDE

67 Women Representing 14
Clubs, Guests of Make-field Group

By Staff Representative

WOODSIDE, Oct. 30 — "Education should not stop for anybody; and when it does stop for you, get a first-class coffin."

This was the advice given by Dr.
Carmon Ross, president of Edinboro
State Teachers College, as he delivered the main address at the Fall meeting of Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, in the Woodside Community house, yesterday afternoon.

His subject being "Significant Trends in Current Education," Dr.
Ross divided the address into various phases, showing the trends of education along numerous lines. Most alert were the club women as they listened to the enlightening discourse.

Dr. Ross, secured for this meeting by the county organization, of which Mrs. Calvin S. Boyer is president, expressed extreme pleasure in being privileged to return to Bucks County, he having for many years served as principal of Doylestown schools. His address was given at the second meeting of the day, the 167 women from 14 clubs in the county being guests of Makelfeld Mothers' Club.

This outstanding leader in educational work in Pennsylvania, informed at the outset of his remarks that he would endeavor to give "solid material." "Never have we seen and heard so much about education as we have since the start of the depression. Never do I remember so much interest being taken in education by so many of the people as today. And the first significant trend I want to mention in the educational line is the stress of the importance of education in the last few years. As citizens we are taking more interest in education and its importance to the people of the world. We realize the need of greater power on the part of all to actually think." Turning to another phase of his subject, Dr. Ross told that education creates tastes and ideals. He then touched on the proper use of leisure time, and how people should be taught to make proper use of such.
Giving an idea of the great productive value of education, the educator quoted figures showing tremendous increases in value of products produced in Pennsylvania. "Education has produced wealth and added to the well-being of the people. We are living in such an age that history books 25 years hence will record as that when we entered a new era in education."

The second great trend in educational pointed out involved the curricular changes going on in the whole scholastic program. "One of the most significant of these is the insistence on vocational education. The last United States Congress appropriated twice as much for vocational education as was suggested as a need. And we likewise find a tremendous interest in the fine arts, music, and homemaking. Art and music were strangled in the last few years owing to the depression. And when we consider the low amount spent on art and music we should insist that American life be enriched."

Clubs which are found in high schools, the speaker informed, are aiding the pupils to adapt themselves to modern life. "We are trying to adjust pupils of the high school and junior high to the life they will meet and be a part of later."

The greater stress placed through the schools on spiritual values or character education, was considered.
"We can so direct their attention to the values of life, that they will be benefitted," Dr. Ross explained.

The great drop in population was then taken up, the decrease being noted since 1929, after a tremendous growth from 1899. "We have 1,000,000 less in the elementary schools this year than last. This lowering in the number of pupils means we can have smaller classes, probably 25 or less, and do finer work. As the population

HALLOWEEN

More honored nowadays in the breach than the observance is the custom of malicious mischief-making on Halloween, the traditional night when witches, devils, and spirits of darkness are abroad and looking for trouble. So are the police authorities in most communities, and they recognize no supernatural excuses for destruction of property on Halloween.

Fortunately there are many other traditions attached to the night before All Hallows Day which do not quarrel with the law. The night of October 31 has other names than Halloween. It is called Succatank Night and Snapapple Night. And in its quaint and harmless celebration are involved customs and ceremonies which go far back in human history. They come from classical mythology and Druidic mysteries, as well as early Christian rituals. Some ancient observances have disappeared though once well approved. "Yolde tyme," says a folk of the early sixteenth century, "good people wolden on All halowen daye lake brade and dede it for all crysten soules." And for this remote reason perhaps, the evening is still called Cake Night in some places.

Halloween is so variously celebrated that any sort of succinct treatment is impossible. But the mischief-making associated with the festival, for the most part, is an American invention and corruption of the night's traditions. Fortunately it is no longer in fashion to substitute rowdiness for the kindly old custom of Halloween, and there is no need to make allowances for those who do so.

TECHNICAL RESEARCH

Upon two activities more than any other the future of the industrial world depends—scientific research and the technical education of youth. Although both involve the outlay of large sums of money every year they have been continued on a large scale during the period of minimum production.

Seventy leading trade associations in the United States are engaged in some form of organized laboratory study and every large industrial organization has its research force.

Collective action by all members of a trade association is considered today the most effective way to undertake basic research that may improve the methods or products of an entire field of business. Industries supporting common or co-operative research laboratories include the textile, oil and chemical engineering industries.

Independently of this the federal government carries on extensive research work in the several fields for the benefit of all in those fields. Whether this is a proper function of government may be the subject of question but the fact remains that government scientists have made many useful contributions to the

"Beauty's A Charm" by HARRIET HINSDALE

CHAPTER XVI

Inside of a week the Carter family was domiciled in what the suave real-estate agent called a "Mexican farmhouse" type residence with all modern improvements, snugly tucked away on a high hillside in a Beverly Hills canyon, with a "million dollar view" over the city thrown in with the rental price.

There were two cars in the garage, a sedan and a roadster, and two servants in the kitchen, a colored man and his wife. The man was to be butler-chauffeur and the woman cook and housemaid. But this, Pearl explained when she engaged them, was to be only a temporary arrangement. Before long, there would be extra help in the house and with that understanding they agreed to accept the jobs.

The ornate furnishings of the place represented faithfully Pearl's flamboyant tastes. She took for herself the largest bedroom, ironically termed "master's room," with an orchid and gold bath of nerve shattering splendor. To Lucy Lee was assigned the next best, while Wakefield Carter and Juddy were given a bedroom to the rear, lacking view and with a bath of ordinary aspect. More and more Wakefield Carter found himself pushed into the back-ground, kept out of sight and overlooked in whatever decisions might be made.

Evidently bewildered by the swiftness of the events in which he was involved, he accepted his ignominious rôle without apparent rebellion. As long as there was liquor with which he could keep himself mildly befuddled and a radio to tune in on, saving even the labor of reading the papers for diversion, Wakefield Carter seemed to lose his identity as an individual. He became merely an annoyance whom his wife suffered about the house because, for the time at least, there was nothing she could do about it.

But there was something she could do about Juddy, whom she had always disliked. Him she packed off to a military school far enough away so that he came home only for infrequent week-ends. It had long been Lucy Lee's dream that Juddy should go away to school. But now that it had come to pass it was with an empty feeling of loneliness not helped by his tears at their parting that she saw him leave. But in a few days the ache was gone. There was no time to think very often of Juddy. Every hour of the day was too filled with exciting new experiences.

She never forgot her first visit to the Supreme Studios—yet the actual details of that memorable entrance into a new and strange world were forever faint and blurred. In the following weeks of course, the lot—as she quickly learned to call it—became a familiar place. Its oddities and fantastic unrealities were taken as normal and not to be wondered at. But that first day's topsy-turvy impressions crowded upon her to the point of bewilderment.

Pearl, who was with them, loved everything. "I'm so excited," she exclaimed. "Just imagine! We're going to walk right in to a big picture studio! Why, I've been reading about them for years but I never dreamed that some day I'd be going in to one of them—just like Marlene Dietrich or Greta Garbo!"

Ames regarded her with an appraising eye. "Maybe Preston will take you on as an extra in the picture, if you act him nice and pretty." He had not meant the suggestion seriously but when he saw Pearl's face he knew that the idea had already been carried out. Trust Pearl!

They were passed in without delay and proceeded down a long, narrow corridor to Neville Preston's office, into which they were ushered by a very attractive secretary who also, Lucy Lee noticed, smiled and called Mr. Ames by name.

Preston sat at a great ornately carved desk and the room was, for an office, furnished with what appeared to Lucy Lee almost overpowering luxury. He was cordial but impersonal, greeting them briefly, chatting a moment then suggesting that as Lucy Lee was to make a screen test right away she might wish to take possession of her dressing room at once. He regretted not being able to give them any more time at the moment, but he was due to go into a story conference immediately.

However, he had given particular instructions to his assistant director as to the test and all arrangements had been made. He was sure Lucy Lee would come through marvelously he added, with a smile which restored to her for a brief instant the Neville Preston she had known along the boardwalk and on the beach.

The pretty secretary escorted them through the building to a huge, sunlit courtyard about which were ranged many structures of all sizes and designs.

There was a patio with a tinkling fountain and trees and shrubs along the paths. Near one of the great sound stages a group of people were talking; men and women with faces heavily made up and wearing odd-looking costumes. The men in long-tailed coats and high collars, the women with bodices and puffed skirts. The secretary explained that they were extras, working in a period picture and waiting to be called back on the set. They looked unreal, grotesque, in the glare of the uncompromising sun.

Pearl was for once rendered speechless by the intensity of her emotions. She was actually pale with excitement as she clutched Lucy Lee's arm, exclaiming in a tense whisper: "My goodness, there's Leslie Howard! Doesn't he look natural? Only, he's wearing glasses."

At a door marked "Publicity Department," Don Ames left them and they continued to a long, narrow building of two stories across the front of which ran a balcony reached by an outer stairway. There were several dressing rooms facing the balcony and one of them, so the secretary announced, had been assigned to Miss Carter. They went in and she stepped to the telephone and, calling for Jim Smith, informed him he could come up now.

"Jim is one of our best make-up men," she explained. "He will fix you up for the test. I'm afraid I must hurry back now. Mr. Preston may want me to take notes on the story conference."

"Oh dear," Lucy Lee cried in sudden uncontrollable terror, "I'm so scared. This test—what do you suppose I will have to do? Maybe I won't screen well!"

She wanted to cry . . . to run away and hide somewhere, far from all this. But she could not. For Jim Smith, the make-up man, was coming through the door of the dressing room. He proved to be a kindly, middle-aged man with a grizzled mustache and quick, deft hands who, after a careful study of Lucy Lee's face, opened the large, black tin box he carried and began laying out cosmetics on the dressing table shelf.

STATE NOW BUILDING NUMEROUS BRIDGES

By Warren Van Dyke
(Secretary of Highways)

HARRISBURG, Oct. 29—That feeling of apprehension one gets while driving over a rickety country bridge also is felt by this road-building department.

And that is why the department now is engaged in its greatest program of repairing or reconstructing dangerous and inadequate spans on highways referred to our jurisdiction by the legislature.

We have always, of course, recognized the importance of bridges to an efficient highways system and have straightened as many as our financial limitations permitted.

A survey shows that 1,294 additional bridges will be added to the State system January 1 along with transfer of 2,600 miles of highways to the State by the 1937 legislature. These bridges will make a total of more than 18,000 bridges, eight feet and greater in span, which the department will have to rebuild and maintain. Approximately half of these are steel or iron bridges, such as I-beam stringer, truss or plate girder type.

An act of 1929 transferred about 1,500 bridges, more than half of which were in urgent need of repairs because of neglected maintenance or replacement. Of course, it was financially impossible to do all this work at once. Bridge betterment work now is based on a program formulated for each fiscal year from two standpoints: first, importance of the highway; and second, physical condition of the structure.

The total number of bridges on the State system includes 359 wooden covered bridges. These also are being replaced by modern-type structures as fast as funds permit.

The 1936-37 program for repairs and replacements included 803 bridges, financed from a budget allocation of $4,000,000 of State funds. The same partial responsibility for the structure amount of money has been budgeted Under this provision, the larger bridges were built and in most instances maintained by the counties. The department, therefore, became responsible only for the smaller bridges on taking over the highways designated in legislative acts which placed additional miles on the State system.

Prior to 1929 bridges were designed and built to accommodate slow-moving, horse-drawn traffic of small volume and low weights. The result was light construction, narrow roadways and often sharp turns at one or both ends of the bridge.

The General Road Law provides that where the construction or maintenance of a bridge would place an undue financial hardship on the township, the county may assume complete or

ed. The department, being responsible for the smaller spans only, rebuilt those that required replacement as part of its road improvement work while the local authorities neglected their bridges because of costs involved.

The General Assembly finally recognized the evils of dual responsibility and in 1929 passed the first of several acts transferring to the department bridges on State highways which previously were the responsibility of the counties.

SAVE THE CONSTITUTION!

Two years ago those in power in this State sought to re-write the Constitution of Pennsylvania for their own purposes, through a Constitutional Convention. The people of this State repulsed that scheme by a majority of more than a quarter of a million votes.

Now, through proposed Amendments which will appear upon your ballot on November 2nd, the same group seeks to achieve the same ends.

Having Practically Doubled the Taxes in This State Within Less Than Three Years, They Now Demand the Right to Collect Millions More and Remove Wise Constitutional Restraints From the Tax System of Pennsylvania

THESE AMENDMENTS ARE DANGEROUS AND VICIOUS

They Have Been so Worded as to Conceal Their Real Meaning. They Would Open the Constitution of This State to Uncontrolled Tax Grabs—to "Ripper" Legislation Which Would Destroy Home Rule—and to Constant Tinkering With the Constitution Itself.

The only possible excuse for Amendment No. 1A is that it would enable proponents of a defeated amendment to keep pushing it before the electorate, year after year, at the expense of the local communities.

Amendment No. 2A—the so-called Income Tax Amendment—would remove from taxes now imposed by the State, the requirement that each Tax must be uniform in its application.

They could make the Gasoline Tax 1 cent a gallon in politically favored sections and set the same Tax at any exorbitant figure in other sections.

They could tax the recording of mortgages in communities of a given population and exempt identical mortgages in other sections.

Excise Taxes could fall heavily upon some homesteads, and not at all upon others.

They could so differentiate in taxes applying to the various uses of land that one landowner would pay a big tax and another would pay little or nothing.

By manipulation and discrimination they could impose taxes for partisan or punitive purposes. This Amendment would permit destructive and confiscatory taxes that would impoverish the State by driving citizens out of it.

The Income Tax provision is not earmarked. School teachers are not mentioned in it, while, as for property owners, the State does not levy a Real Estate Tax and obviously could not abolish or reduce that which it has not imposed. Moreover, wage-earners have no assurance that the exemption will not be so low that practically everyone would pay tribute under this tax.

The proposed Amendment is silent as to all these things—specific only in the vicious powers it would create.

Every consideration of self-defense demands the overwhelming defeat of this proposal.

Amendment No. 3A is unnecessary because over a long period of years the State has been paying these pensions and benefactions under present laws.

Amendment No. 4A is the "Ripper" Amendment. Only the Constitution of Pennsylvania has preserved for the largest city in our Commonwealth that degree of home rule which it exercises today. Through this Amendment the Administration would accomplish by Constitutional "ripper" what it failed to accomplish by Legislative "ripper." They seek Constitutional permission to legislate the City of Philadelphia into the control of those to whom the people of Philadelphia have been unwilling to vote control.

Under the cloak of "economy," this Amendment would rip out a County, to give more patronage to the most wasteful and extravagant Administration in the history of Pennsylvania—by "ripper" legislation.

Amendment No. 5A has been abandoned by its sponsors. This proposal now has no known supporters.

Preserve the Constitution and Its Proven Protection Prevent Another Load of New Taxes—Vote Down "Rippers"

Defeat All of These Amendments

indirectly. The other thing we can give directly.

"The first thing is an opportunity to earn a living in a job with a semblance of dignity. Youth does not look forward to being a permanent WPA worker, or to be a permanent case on the relief rolls. We have said to youth in high school, 'study hard, learn your lessons and when you graduate you will be able to earn a good living.' But 5,000,000 youths who never had a job are now saying to us, 'what is this lie you have taught us under the American flag?' But unfortunately, we can only aid here indirectly.

"The second thing we can give youth is a vision of things to be done by youth.

"Let us urge youth to conquer venereal disease. There are 10,000,000 active cases of such diseases in this country, and the number is being increased by 400,000 yearly. Last year 26,000 people died of such disease in this country, more than died in the A. E. F. in Europe in any 12 months. Let us show youth the vision of a clean body, and youth will respond by ridding the nation of this scourge. Teach youth to abide by the rules. It is far better to teach them to play fair than to win.

"The school rooms of America, more than any one source, can do more to eradicate vice than any other one source. Syphilis and gonorrhea can be eliminated in one generation through the efforts and work of our schools. Young people by nature, are good sports. A radical readjustment, in all due respect to the educational leaders of our country, must take place within the next two years in our high school curriculum. We must introduce 100 percent sports participation, without a doubt. Only through the process of sports participation can we eradicate this terrible condition of affairs. Let every child in school today take part in some type of sport. Athletic activity is far more important than Latin, trigonometry and a number of other studies.

"Next, let us show youth God. Not the Jewish God, not the Protestant God, not the Roman Catholic God but the Common Father of us all. We ministers put God in bottles and label them Jews, Protestants, Catholics. We urge youth to accept each one as the best of the three. We are peddlers of God, hawkers of religion. We are no better than the man who put different labels on gasoline and tries to convince the customers that his particular brands are better than the others.

"When I see so many of our churches without youths in their congregations, sometimes I congratulate youth, for I believe they have got wise to us preachers. Let us teach them the words of God as given to Moses on Mount Sinai. Let us teach them the Sermon on the Mount. Let us teach them the actual will of God and let's stop peddling Him in various forms.

"Did you ever stop to consider the meaning of the Biblical legend of Sinai? Sinai is a desert and belonged politically to no nation. The desert belongs to all people, and so does the word of God. I do not advocate the consolidation of Protestant denominations, the union of Protestantism and Catholicism and Judaism. We are born to our religion by the accident of birth, as we are taught by our parents to like certain kinds of clothes. But let us not forget that there are clothes of various color and design and think of them as just clothes.

"Then, let us show youth a democratic spirit so they won't be misled by false economic and political philosophies, and let us show them the meaning of the word peace. Did you ever stop to consider that we are feeding our boys as we feed pigs, merely to fatten them for the slaughter as cannon fodder. Our militarists don't want skinny, puny soldiers; they must be well fed, and you fathers just realize the next time you see your boy at the table that he is going to be killed, either by his stomach cut out by a bayonet or by being torn to pieces by a bomb hurled from the air. Then you will teach your boy the horrors of war and you will see that other boys are taught it too.

"So my fellow teachers, let us help to clear away the sham. Let the ministers and churches stop membership-grabbing, soul-snatching and raising budgets for their own salaries, and spend some time on saving youth. You cannot fool youth of today but you can be the one and only means of bringing about a new generation, a youth with a clean body, one God and one humanity."

Dr. Walter B. Greenway, president of Beaver College, Glenside and Jenkintown, was another speaker at the afternoon session of yesterday's Institute. He spoke on "Seasoning Education."

"Education will not solve the problems of our country or of other nations, as it is today," he said. "What is needed is some seasoning. The kind of seasoning that we need today is the same type that our forefathers used. They put the school house and the meeting house close together. In the present day we build the school house and the meeting house far apart.

"The framework of this country is O. K.; some of the windows are missing but the general structure is still safe.

"There is something wrong, however, when we read that 435,000 young women are being trained in the teaching profession while more than a million are being trained as bar maids. "Spiritual seasoning is the first important thing needed. Kindness is another seasoning badly needed and next comes optimism."

increase the salaries of state employees who are now exempt from income taxes.

No estimate has been made of the possible revenue from this proposed tax. A guess is that it would amount to $60,000,000 for each biennium. The total state budget for the present biennium is $525,000,000. This is two and one-half times as much as it took to run the state a decade ago. But it is not enough. For relief alone the state is running in the hole at the rate of a million dollars a month.

Some people are of the opinion that this tax would induce the politicians to wipe out the personal property tax of eight mills. There is little hope here. The state personal property tax is not eight but four mills. The other four mills are levied by the counties, and its repeal would be strenuously resisted by the counties. So that this is just another will-o'-the-wisp.

It is not stipulated in the proposed amendment or anywhere else officially that the revenue from this income tax would go anywhere except into the general fund. It is not earmarked for the reduction of local taxes. It is not earmarked for schools. It is not earmarked for the elimination of the personal property tax. Further, there is no intention of applying it to anything but the maintenance of the vast army of political parasites.

Adoption of that particular amendment would not only permit the state to levy an income tax, but it would permit every taxing unit to do the same. Soon cities, boroughs, townships, counties and school districts would be levying income taxes without any abatement of the present taxes.

This is a vicious principle. It will be No. 2 on the proposed amendments to be found on the ballot to be used at the election next month. It should be rejected decisively, and for that matter so should all the others.

They are designed to remove popular safeguards in the constitution of the state. They have been proposed by the politicians to perpetuate the power of the spenders and drive wealth and industry from Pennsylvania into other states which are much less ravenous than this state has become under the dominion of those who now hold the reins of power.

Club Women of County Hear of Education Trends

of a nation is reduced, we have a selected group, and greater choice of material in the elementary grades. But we do find an increase in the students of high school as this age is extended to 17 and 18 years."

Some consideration was given by Dr. Ross, for benefit of the club women, to the problem of reorganization of curricula to meet the needs of the 85 per cent of students who will not go to college. "This means a new type of teacher and a new type of laboratory for the junior high school students. . . . Then again we must begin to place the young people as they leave high school. Vocational guidance must amount to something."

Turning thoughts to continuous or adult education the speaker informed that "Too many of us older folks think that you can't teach an old dog new tricks. This is not true in the case of adults. Education should not stop for anybody; and when it does stop for you, get a first-class coffin."

About education for leisure and recreation, the doctor said: "It must be of a variety of divergent interests to appeal to the mass of people."

Of teacher education he said: "We have had too much training, and too little education. I don't like that word 'training' when we really mean 'education.' We need better educated teachers. In Pennsylvania in 1929 there were only eight per cent who had college degrees. Now 40 per cent have such, and we have no teachers in the state with less than two years' education beyond the high school. It was the sad state of the blind leading the blind in those days. The trend now is to make college education available to all desiring it at a minimum cost."

Giving the closing minutes of his address to thoughts of guidance, the former Bucks Countian stressed the point that "We must make more of guidance; make it a program instead of a plaything." Quoted by Dr. Ross at the close of his discourse was the definition given by a small colored boy in a Southern school of the word "education": "Education is the thing which helps us read the signs at the cross-roads."

Musical numbers presented by Junior club members of Doylestown, arranged by Mrs. John H. Elman, program chairman of the group, and representative of juniors on the executive board, were given in pleasing and colorful style. The young women, garbed as Gypsy girls, sang as they arranged themselves Gypsy-style on the platform floor. "Play Gypsy, Dance Gypsy," with Miss Edna Larzelere giving a Gypsy dance. Then followed two more selections by the "Gypsies," "The Gypsy Trail" (Galloway), and "Carmena" (Wilson). Chorister was Miss Marie Barton, and accompanist, Mrs. Edward L. Pearce, both of Doylestown. Another musical portion of the program of the afternoon was the federation song by the assemblage, led by Miss Lillian VanArtsdalen, Yardley, this being followed by a "round" in which the women took part. Miss Margaret Lehman, Doylestown, junior chairman of drama of the Bucks County clubs, favored with a reading, "Speaking of Operations" by Irwin S. Cobb.

Mrs. Daniel Erdman, Quakertown, reported that four clubs have recently donated to the Catherine G. Ryan scholarship fund of the federation, and told of the young women being aided by the loan fund. In the Junior scholarship report it was mentioned that one young woman is receiving funds for the third consecutive year from the Catherine Schell Crumrine Scholarship, and other candidates are being looked for, as this is the final year for the one recipient.

Mrs. Harry Shoemaker, Doylestown, brought to the women the plan for the "Dogwood Trail" from Valley Forge to Washington Crossing, and told of the number of trees already planted.

During the morning hours, at the first meeting of the day, Mrs. Isaac J. VanArtsdalen, Doylestown, led in the salute to the flag; with Rev. Francis C. Thomas, pastor of Yardley Methodist Church, giving the invocation. A welcome was extended by Mrs. Harry S. Hoffman, president of Makefield Mothers' Club; with response by the county president, Mrs. Boyer. During transaction of business, Mrs. Walter B. Wiley, Mechanicsville, read minutes of the Spring meeting; and Mrs. J. Melvin Freed, Perkasie, gave report of the condition of the treasury.

County chairmen of various committees, as well as co-chairmen, were presented to the gathering, and reports given.

Two addresses were delivered in the morning, Mrs. Alfred A. Crooks, Norwood vice-president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, speaking on subjects pertinent to work of the club women, and T. Elmer Transeau, assistant director of public safety of the city of Philadelphia, having as his subject "Highway Safety."

The day's program was arranged by the following committee members: Mrs. Samuel Althouse, Sellersville; Mrs. Harry S. Hoffman, Woodside; Mrs. Evan Roberts, Makefield; Miss Lillian VanArtsdalen, Yardley.

During the noon-tide recess period, members of the executive board were guests of the Makefield Club at luncheon. Others attending enjoyed box lunches.

Preserve the Constitution of Penna. Reject Another Load of New Taxes

Patterning itself after a National Government which has increased taxes to the limit of endurance, and whose spend-thrift policies have piled up a bankrupting Federal debt, the Administration at Harrisburg is now asking for the same powers to further exploit the people of this State.

Two years ago the voters of Pennsylvania turned down a proposed Constitutional Convention, by a majority of more than a quarter of a million votes.

The Earle Administration seeks to accomplish those very same purposes now, through proposed Amendments that will appear on your ballot in the Election, November 2nd.

TAX GRABS AND RIPPER LEGISLATION ARE THE ESSENCE OF THESE PROPOSALS

Having practically doubled the taxes in this State within the three years they have been in power, they now ask the right to borrow $42,000,000, and for an Income Tax which is not "ear-marked" and hence could be spent for anything—which would add millions upon millions to the swollen tax load in this State, and reach to practically every family in the Commonwealth.

EVEN IF YOU ARE NOT A DIRECT TAX-PAYER, YOU ARE NOW PAYING A MULTITUDE OF CONCEALED AND INDIRECT TAXES. DO YOU WANT AN INCOME TAX, AS WELL AS A GRADUATED PROPERTY TAX, ADDED TO YOUR PRESENT BURDENS? ARE YOU READY TO FINANCE A FURTHER EXPANSION OF THEIR LONG SPENDING SPREE?

Preserve the Constitution of Pennsylvania against their assault. Protect yourself against an unparalleled tax grab. Prevent this Administration from accomplishing by Constitutional Ripper what it was halted in doing by Legislative Ripper.

IN SELF-DEFENSE on November 2nd on all the Amendments

Crimson and Tigers Ready

An up-and-coming Harvard team is set for their annual battle with the Princeton Tiger in his lair. Headed by Captain Allen, the Cantab's star guard, Coach Harlow has prepared a capable team with Harding among the star reserves. Princeton comes to the fray with Harold Stokes at guard and Jack Daniel, the backfield ace.

SIX SCHOOL ELEVENS STAGE BATTLES TODAY

By Louis Tomlinson

If Coach George Reimer's Bensalem Owls don't squeeze a victory out of their system this week when they clash against a strong Hattboro outfit at Corwells Heights this afternoon, they may not have the opportunity to win a game this season, until they meet Fallington on Thanksgiving Day.

The Owls have dropped four in a row so far and after a week's lay-off, may be in good enough condition and shape to pull a surprise and take the visitors over. But this is doubtful. Hattboro is a strong Montgomery County eleven and a member of the Bux-Mont League in which they have won three games and lost one. They also lost a tilt to Langhorne two weeks ago, this giving them a season's record of three won and two lost.

Fallington's early battered around eleven comes back for more today afternoon when it clashes with the fast stepping Morrisville Bulldogs at Island Field, Morrisville in a Lower Bucks County Conference fray.

Coach John Hoffman's boys gained momentum when they returned home after a short road trip of two games, and since that time they have rolled up 77 points to their opponents making in the last three games. And it doesn't appear at this time they will succumb before a miserably weak aggregation coached by Mike Bell.

The odds and everything that goes with it are in favor of the home team as Coach Steve Jungers' little team of eleven ascends the list of the victors. Eagles at Norristown this afternoon.

The Eagles possess one of the best teams in this section, they are undefeated, but the two games in which they are playing on the home field, and they are about 25 pounds to a man heavier than Bristol's squad. All of this leads one to believe that Norristown should cop the honors in this tilt today and in convincing style.

Perhaps, almost without a shadow of a doubt, the home team will emerge the victor in this titanic struggle, but we're just as convinced that they will trample the visitors underfoot and not like so much walking space. In fact, we might venture to say the Eagles must have their eyes sharpened, and plenty of fight in them in order to subdue their guests of the afternoon.

ANDALUSIA ELEVEN OUT TO WIN 5TH GAME

Joe Diannetti's Andalusia Green Wave will attempt to register its fifth straight win tomorrow afternoon as it meets the Holy Oak's eleven of Wayne Co. The game will be played on the Andalusia-John State Road and Walnut avenue, and will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Only a tie with the Greedy A. C. team mars the record of the Green Wave. They reached their heights last week when they decisively trounced the York Cardinals, 34-0. The team, under the management of Calvin Frens, is meeting stiffer competition this week. Next Sunday, they encounter the Homestead Grays, and the coming week will see the green unit squared off with the Purple and Gold St. Ann's team.

Only one club has scored on the Green Wave as far this season while the Cardinals are rolling up more points every day. In the last two tilts, Diannetti's boys have scored a total of 120 points.

ST. ANN'S GRIDDERS TO PLAY SELLERSVILLE XI

Coach "Bill" Dougherty's St. Ann's A. A. gridders will have the mid test of the season tomorrow afternoon as they line up against one of the strong aggregations ever assembled to represent the Sellersville Green Jackets. The game will be played on the Sellersville High School field. The "Saints" will leave their club-house at twelve o'clock.

Dougherty is confident that his boys will bring home the bacon for their third straight triumph. The club won over Doylestown and last week trimmed the Carlisle Indians. In both frays, Coach Dougherty's proteges could have rolled up a higher score.

The St. Ann's mentor is sticking to the same starting line-up of: Ends, Firman and Conti; tackles, Kornstedt and Gullatto; guards, Angelo and Proby; center, Accardi; quarter-back, Sagolla; halfbacks, Tosti and Ross; fullback, Bono.

Terror, Anger Spread As Result of 'Big Push'

Soldiers during a Nipponese artillery assault on the city's western suburbs. British troops here were aroused nearly to the point of drastic action over the killing of three of their number and the critical wounding of three others by Japanese shells which fell inside the British defense sector.

Five Chinese civilians also were slain and some two score wounded. British authorities doubled their defenses and lodged vehement protests with the Japanese.

In this dangerous situation, fraught with possibilities of grave international repercussions, there was no definite confirmation here of reports that Japan is ready to take peace.

At Nanking, however, a Chinese Foreign office spokesman declared:

"It has been obvious from the beginning that Japan would suggest an armistice as soon as she occupied North China and the area around Shanghai—in order to consolidate her gains."

"But China's point of view was declared by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek when he said the Sino-Japanese hostilities are not a local question and involve all China. As long as the Japanese occupy a single inch of Chinese territory, China will continue her resistance."

Thus, from an official Chinese source came an indication that the war may continue for a long period, threatening always to start a conflagration on a much larger scale if it continues along the lines of yesterday's incidents.

International tension boiled high as a result of the British casualties, wrought by heavy shell-fire that raked the Jessfield Park area, west of the international settlement.

Japan Wants Peace Dictated By Sword Alone

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(INS)—Japan will accept a peace in China which is dictated by the sword alone. She will insist upon making the terms, and they will be the terms of a conqueror. Mediation, or interference otherwise, by the Western powers, will not be accepted.

This inflexible determination of the Imperial Government at Tokyo was disclosed to International News Service today by an unimpeachable Japanese source.

Only when a humbled China, crushed by the Nipponese war machine, asks for a truce, will Japan consider armistice in the military operations and talk of peace, this source asserted.

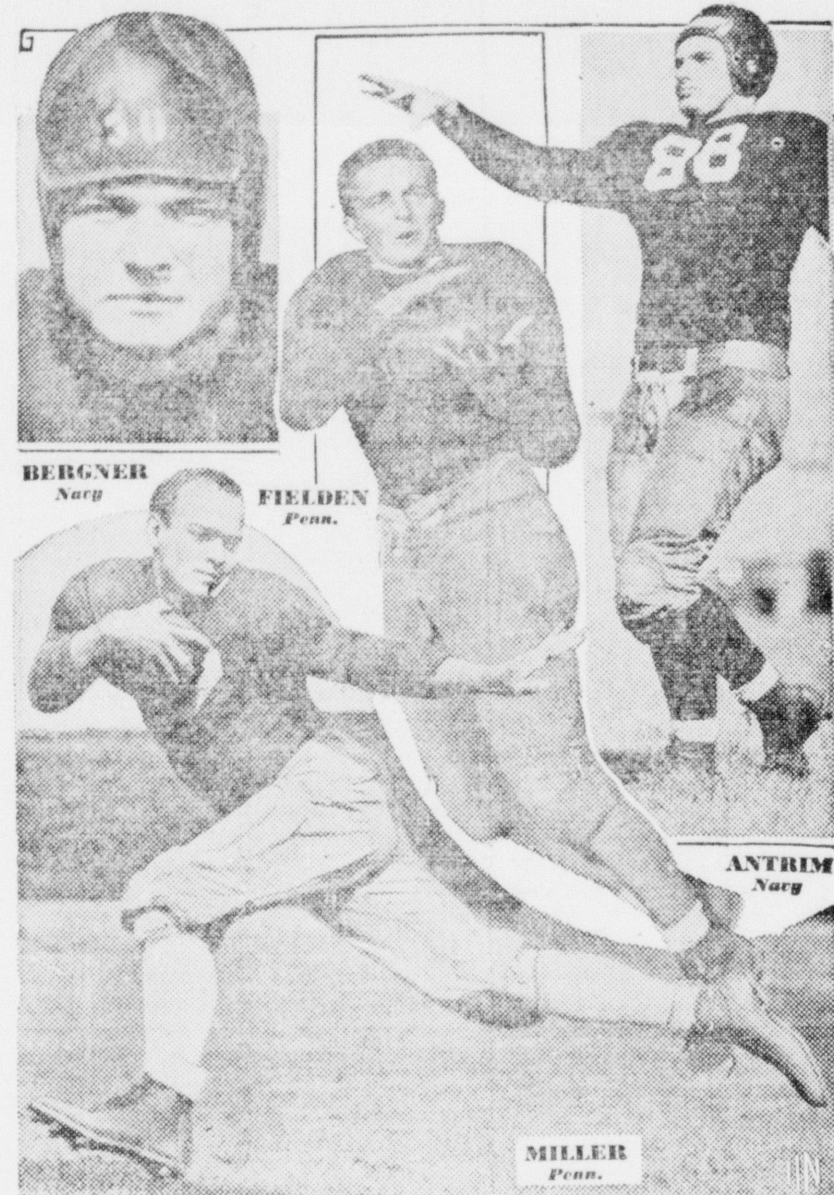

Japan, it was declared, will spurn any offer of mediation put forward by the nine-power conference which opens at Brussels next week, regardless of what condemnatory resolutions are there adopted.

Tokyo is convinced neither the United States nor Great Britain, nor any of the lesser powers, will co-operate in imposition of an economic blockade against her, much less resort to war to save China. She regards the Sino-Japanese conflict as a war for economic survival and is determined and they will be the terms of a conqueror to pursue it to a victorious end, whatever the cost may be.

PUPILS HAVE PARTY

The first, second and third grades of Bath street school, taught by the Misses Hilgendorf, Sparks, Lerman and Connor, held a Halloween party Thursday. A march took place in all the rooms. Several children entertained with songs, recitations and dances. Games and refreshments were enjoyed. The children made their own masks in school, in connection with their art work.

Penn and Navy Stalwarts

A University of Pennsylvania eleven which misses their great 1936 backfield is running into a hurricane in the shape of a good Navy team. The Blue and Red have Fielden, a tough end, and Miller, an excellent halfback. The Middies come up with Antrim, tested halfback, and Bergner, a shifty tackle. Navy rates high, based on a tie with Harvard and a close one with Notre Dame.

Stars of Big Green and Eli Ready for Fray

Earl Blaik seems to have produced another pattern of Dartmouth which tangles with an unbeaten Yale team at the Bowl in New Haven. Losing eight veterans from 1933, the Big Green looms large with Hutchinson, star fullback; Hollingsworth, kicking halfback, and Gibson at center. Yale present the irrepressible Clint Frank, speedy Charlie Ewart and Al Reesberg behind a stalwart line.
